

Tip of the Week #1

Having trouble getting your child to focus on task in a busy household?

Try a "Private Office".

Creating an "office" and space to do home programs

Simply tape together two file folders, leaving some overlap in the middle for stability. Try a standing station, sitting at a table, or working on their bellies on the floor.

Have multiple learners in your house, make one for each, have older kids modelling working in their office.
